

Hoffman Center for the Arts
Clay Studio Closure Notice

March 11, 2020

As the novel coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic continues to affect the global community, the Hoffman Center for the Arts is looking for ways to navigate the rapidly evolving situation. While we may consider ourselves relatively isolated at the Coast, many in our community fall into higher risk categories for complications from the virus.

Based on guidance from the CDC and other public health organizations to limit social contact, we will temporarily close the Clay Studio – including Open Studio, for at least two weeks effective March 12.

We will monitor the situation on a continuing basis and adjust the schedule and our plan as necessary. Notice of reopening details will be made 48 hours in advance via the Hoffman calendar and email.

If you have works that you would like to pick up to take home, please write to us at hoffmanclaystudio@gmail.com and we will work with you to schedule a time that one of our volunteers can individually assist you.

Updates on this and other Hoffman operations may be found at any time by checking the Hoffman Center for the Arts website: <https://hoffmanarts.org/we-care-about-your-health/>

Stay well,
