

Jenny Stanley

Jenny lives and works in the Northern Oregon coastal town of Oceanside. She paints in oils, watercolor, acrylic and also does encaustic work.

“I feel such a connection to the land and sea in this part of the country. With it's wild winter storms, spring rains and the way the clouds chase each other across the sky above the sea. The graceful waves of reeds along our waterways – I've tried to capture some of these images in my work.”

Jenny majored in Fine Art in college and has studied throughout the United States and Europe. In addition, Jenny is an award-winning illustrator of children's books. Barron's of New York currently publishes her illustrated books. Her paintings can be found in private and corporate art collections throughout the United States and Europe.
